WEIMAR QUIZ RECOMMENDED

Placer Grand Jury's
Report Urges Probe By
14-County Committee

AUBURN (UP) — Further investigation of conditions at Weimar Sanatorium near Colfax, was recommended today in the final report of the Placer county grand jury which conducted an inquiry over several weeks.

Affairs of the institution, conducted jointly by 14 northern California counties including El Dorado county, for care of tubercular patients, were placed before the grand jury following an investigation by county supervisors into charges of maladministration filed by former employees.

The supervisors voted 11 to 3 in support of present officials of the sanatorium.

The grand jurors in urging the probe continued — at the expense of the 14 counties instead of Placer county alone — recommended employment of seven additional nurses, limiting outside clinic visits of the medical superintendent, more frequent examinations by the counties' central committee, and appointment of a committee of nurses to receive complaints of personnel at the institution.

Idaho Mourns

W. E. Borah

Plans All Ready Begun
For Permanent Memorial
To Distinguished Solon

BOISE, Ida., (UP) — The body of William E. Borah, the lion of Idaho, arrived home today as the friends who saw him rise from an obscure young attorney to a statesman of international renown gathered to pay him final reverence.

Thousands of the citizens he represented in the senate for 33 of his 74 years began early today to pass the bier. His body lay in state awaiting the military funeral in the state capitol rotunda and burial in the snow-covered ground of Morris Hill cemetery.

Funeral services were to be conducted in the flower banked rotunda by the Rev. Frank A. Rhea, dean of the Episcopal Cathedral here.

Plans for a permanent Borah memorial already were under way. L. A. Price of Jamestown, N. M., and an anonymous donor, also of New York, sent contributions to Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen and he announced that M. W. Melziam, a Moscow, Ida., architect, had offered to donate his services for the erection of a William Edgar Borah Memorial Auditorium.

MASKOVICH SENTENCED TO SAN QUENTIN FROM STOCKTON

Alex Maskovich, sought as a probation violator by El Dorado County officers, was sentenced to San Quentin prison following his arrest at Stockton last week on another forgery charge, it is revealed in the following report from the San Joaquin County seat which appeared in Sacramento papers during the week.

When Sheriff George Lucot of Amador County goes on a trip he still is on the job.

Halt in the Greyhound Bus depot in Stockton en route to Los Angeles, Lucot spotted Alex Maskovich, 23, and escorted him to the Stockton police station.

"Lock this man up," Lucot advised, "he's wanted in Placerville for a hot check charge."

"You bet," replied the local officers, "but first we want to ask him about a little forging that's been going on here."

Later Superior Judge D. M. Young sentenced the youth to San Quentin Prison following his plea of guilty to the Stockton charge.

R. C. Dearing, formerly of Denver, Colorado, but a resident of this county for the past year has opened a business known as the "Model Tailor," in part of the building now occupied by Model Shoe Shop, at 478 Main Street.

BIRTHDAY BALL ON SATURDAY

County-Wide Support
Evidenced In Drive
On Infantile Paralysis

The annual movement to raise additional funds to assist in the "war" against infantile paralysis, in the county as well as on a national front, reaches a peak this week in the "President's birthday ball," to be held Saturday night at Landis Hall, Diamond Springs.

Red's Rhythm Rascals will play and, according to Robert Reeder, chairman of the current "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign in the county, the ball is being especially conditioned to insure excellent dancing.

The dance is only one feature of the campaign against infantile paralysis in which, of the funds raised, half will be retained in the county for work against infantile paralysis and the other half will go to the national fund for that purpose.

The annual "March of Dimes" is now under way, and throughout the county as well as throughout the nation, badges are being sold for ten cents to further augment the infantile paralysis fund.

In El Dorado County, with the co-operation of Superintendent K. W. McCoy and the teachers, the "March of Dimes" is being conducted in various schools.

Members of the Soroptimist Club will assist in the "March of Dimes" campaign by providing the opportunity for people in the Placerville business district to purchase badges, and the assistance of the Boy Scouts in the movement has also been pledged, according to Chairman Reeder.

The publicity chairman for the committee reports that the members of Pleasant Valley Grange, who have a dance scheduled for Saturday night, have notified the committee that they will turn over half the proceeds of their dance to the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" committee in the county.

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Rains fell over most of California today and high waves battered the southern coastline, causing slight damage. Two youths were reported missing off Point Firmin.

The coast guard said it had been informed the youths, who were not identified, had been carried out to sea when they were taking pictures of the stormy seas.

The Weather Bureau said the rainfall was general: north of the Tehachapis, with the fall heaviest in the extreme north. The rain turned to snow in the mountain areas.

It forecast continued rains for the north tonight and tomorrow with slightly lower temperatures and rain in the west portion of southern California tonight and tomorrow.

The mountainous seas battering the southern coast undermined interurban railway tracks, threatening the roadbed of Southern Pacific's coast line, and damaged beachfront property. A six-foot, six-inch tide inundated beaches.

The weather bureau reported a low pressure area in the northeast Pacific and said it was responsible for the rainstorm.

Redding had the heaviest fall for the 24-hour period ended at 5 a. m. with precipitation of 1.67 inches. Eureka reported .11; Fresno .65; Sacramento .14; and San Francisco .40. There was no rain during the period in San Diego or Los Angeles areas.

Dr. Townsend Has New Plan

Revised Proposal Would
Levy On Gross Incomes
Over $3,000 Annually

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, head of the old age pension movement bearing his name, proposed a revised $200 a month pension plan today to be submitted to congress soon.

His latest proposal, which would replace the much criticized flat 2 per cent transaction tax with a gross income levy on persons and corporations earning $250 a month or $3000 a year and over, was announced at a dinner he gave last night to five senators and more than 50 representatives.

The plan, like other Townsend proposals—including the one defeated in congress a year ago—proposes repeal of the social security act's old age pension features and would provide a $200 a month payment to all persons over 60 who were retired from their jobs.

Forest Supervisor Edwin F. Smith left Thursday to spend several days at the regional forest headquarters, at San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Joshua M. Bassi, of El Dorado, are the parents of a daughter, Naomi Louise, born January 16th, at Placerville Sanatorium.

Representative John D. Dingell, of Michigan, urges the sale of 10,000 Garand rifles, newest and most sensational weapon of the United States army, to Finland at one dollar each to test the effectiveness of the arm in Finland's war against Russia. The cost of the rifles is close to $1,000 each. Dingell's bill also provides for the sale of ammunition.

Armistice Closing Gaining Support

Other Legion Posts Join
Local Unit In Stand On State Convention Bid

El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion, of Placerville, appear to have "started something" last week when they indicated their attitude toward the proposal of Sacramento Legion members that the 1941 state department convention be held in Sacramento.

The position of El Dorado Post was that it would not assist the Sacramento contingent at the 1940 convention, and might even oppose their efforts to win the convention, so long as merchants in Sacramento keep their stores open on Armistice Day while stores in the smaller towns of Northern California are closed.

El Dorado Post feels that Armistice Day is a patriotic holiday which is patriotically observed by merchants of the smaller towns and that it is not patriotic for the merchants of the capital city to keep their stores open on November 11th.

The "storm" had been brewing for two years or more and following public announcement of the decision of El Dorado Post last week, a resolution embodying the same stand was adopted by the Fourth District of the American Legion, embracing Yuba, Sutter, Colusa, Tehama, Butte and Glenn counties.

In the Fourth District meeting, a resolution favoring the removal of the annual Boys' State, conducted by the American Legion, from Sacramento, was tabled.

Meanwhile, members of El Dorado Post received reports from the Third District, of the American Legion, embracing Modoc, Sierra, Lassen and Plumas Counties, that a similar stand toward the Sacramento bid for the state convention in 1941 is being considered.

Likewise, it is understood that the proposition will be taken up by the Sixth District, of which El Dorado County is a part, at its convention in Fair Oaks on February 18th. The Sixth District also includes Sacramento.

Junior Legion Auxiliary Plans Valentine Dance

Members of the Junior American Legion Auxiliary are making plans for a Valentine dance February 10 at the Shakespeare Clubhouse. The members of the Shakespeare Club are making it possible for the unit to give this dance and others which will follow as a means of creating a fund in the junior auxiliary treasury which will be used for community welfare work. The girls state there will be prizes for the prettiest costume and for the funniest costume.

The auxiliary celebrated Leap Year Tuesday evening with a potluck supper followed by dancing.

U.S.-JAP TRADE PACT EXPIRES

Nipponese See Move As Serious Effort To Block
Their Chinese Program

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

Japanese anger against the United States and Great Britain today had shifted the center of diplomatic conflict to the far east.

The United States commercial treaty with Japan, signed in 1911, expires today, and the question of Japanese domination in the far east again comes to the front of international controversy.

In Washington, as little emphasis as possible was placed on the effect of President Roosevelt's denunciation of the treaty but in Japanese eyes it was a serious effort to destroy Tokyo's program for creation of a "new order" in east Asia. Japanese angrily watched for the next step for an embargo on armament materials to Japan and indicated that economic blows by America would be met in kind.

American denunciation of the treaty was regarded with enthusiasm by the Chinese nationalist government and in Shanghai it was (Continued on page three)

Holland Warns Belligerents

Foreign Minister's Message Believed
Aimed At Japan

THE HAGUE — (UP) — A stern warning to belligerents to respect Dutch neutrality and to avoid injuring the trade, independence or territorial integrity of the Netherlands was given in parliament today by Foreign Minister Dr. E. N. van Kieffens.

After calling on the Dutch to endure sacrifices and increase their defensive strength Kieffens sounded what was regarded as a warning to possible aggressors in Europe and indirectly to Japan.

"As long as the nation is willing to give up everything for the integrity of its territory and its independence no big power can allow itself to see our territory in other hands in Europe or Asia," Kieffens said.

"Holland must sail her ships. We must trade. We must offer our services to others. Otherwise our people cannot exist. Countries which act against their enemies and in so doing hurt our trade must not forget this... We shall have to show that we are a nation full of vitality."

PLACERVILLE MAY BE NEW DISTRICT CENTER FOR L. D. S. CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. Vernal Petersen, both of whom are L. D. S. missionaries in the California Mission, are here from their headquarters at Redding, attending to business in connection with the L. D. S. church of Placerville. Mr. Petersen, an elder in the church, is also president of the Shasta District of the California Mission, of which this county is a part.

According to Elder Petersen, plans have been completed at mission headquarters in Los Angeles to create a new district comprising five counties of the Mother Lode area. The new district is known as "El Dorado," and, although no definite decision has been arrived at, it is thought likely that Placerville will be established as headquarters.

The new district counties include Nevada, Placer, Amador, Tuolumne and Mariposa. Elder Everett M. Wray, who has been stationed for the past few months at Monterey, has been named the new district president. Vernon Alphin, who had just arrived in the California mission from Lovell, Wyoming, is Elder Wray's traveling companion. The two men were here the first of the week on a tour of inspection of the entire district. They expect to be back in Placerville Sunday, to attend Sunday school and to speak at the evening Sacramento services.

"More Than Love"

by LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Leland Forbes and Jeanette Morse meet in Virginia and fall in love. They plan an early marriage. Forbes' only relative is a sister who is married to a worthless brute. Leland has not mentioned her to Jeanette. Just before the day set for the marriage this sister, Lola, comes to Leland with her baby. She is in terror, and explains that she has killed her brutal husband when he attacked her. There were no witnesses and her husband's relatives, who hate her, will, she fears, commit perjury to send her to the chair. Leland feels that this is a duty more than love and takes his sister and baby to a hiding place in the Blue Ridge mountains, leaving a mysterious farewell note for Jeanette. After a long period Jeanette finds Leland at the mountain hut but seeing the baby and his sister, and hearing Lola try to explain that they are not married, Jeanette runs away, heartbroken, before Leland can stop her to explain.

CHAPTER V.

"Jeanette!" Leland shouted with all the power of his lungs. "Stop—please stop, Jeanette!" He was certain that she could hear him for her car made but little noise over the soft dirt road. But Jeanette did not turn her head. She had heard him, as he knew well enough she did, but her mind was in a turmoil from the shock.

Naturally but one thought came to her—Leland had buried himself in the woods with another woman. Why the woman had called out to her that she was not married Jeanette couldn't understand. It seemed a most unusual thing to do. That made it much worse, to Jeanette's way of looking at it.

That Leland could stoop to a common-law marriage would have been absolutely beyond her belief if she hadn't been there, seen Leland, heard the woman say that they were not married and also seen the baby. It was quite a sizeable tot, Jeanette thought. The little chap had been running around in the tiny yard when she walked down the path and when Leland had come out and lifted the child up. The child's name, she overheard, was Leland. He called the woman "mama," and from the size of the child Jeanette figured that he had been born probably a year before she had met Leland. So that was it—Leland was the father, she told herself, and out of a sense of duty according to his views he had refused to marry Jeanette and had run away to care for his child and its mother.

There was no explaining, Jeanette said to herself, over and over. Meanwhile, as her car disappeared from Leland's view, he cut across the woods to the Orson place and had a talk with Harvey. Orson did not know of any strange woman being in that locality, although someone had said that a "furrin woman" was living at the Baumgartner farm near Crockett's station.

"Orson," Leland said, "I dare not go out there just now, but I wish you would drive over and find this woman, take a note to her." Orson would do anything for Leland out of friendship, and, in addition, Leland paid him well for his services, bringing in produce and the like. He gladly agreed to go.

"On second thought, Orson," Leland said, "I will not write a note." He had followed Orson out and was helping him harness his horse. He regretted, then, that he had never bought a small car for the man to use.

"When you find her she may refuse to talk, Orson," Leland went on with his instructions, "but you can say to her that the woman saw his sister." "Shall I say it in front of any one else, Mister Forbes?" "Yes, you can say just that. The woman you saw is his sister—I am sure, then, that she will let you talk with her alone. You tell her she must come back at once." Orson agreed. Leland watched him drive away and then he went back home.

After nearly a week had passed he met Jeanette just outside Maxin's office. She started to walk past him.

"Jeanette Morse—she illustrates my books."

"Isn't she more than a business friend?"

"Let's not discuss it, dear."

"His sister ran up and clutched his arm."

"You love her— isn't that true?"

"He saw that there was no way of evading this now, and decided to tell her the truth."

"—that is, I love her. We expected some day."

"Tell me, how soon were you to be married at the time you brought me here?"

"Oh, fairly soon. I intended to tell you, but you were having so much trouble right then, but it will work out."

"Lola sat down suddenly and began to cry."

"What a miserable failure I am, and how I have spoiled your life and the life of that pretty woman," she sobbed.

"He tried his best to comfort her. In a measure she was right, but he tried to make her see that it was something she couldn't avoid."

"I could have taken your advice. I should have had more sense than to lose my head and think that I loved that man because he was good looking—if I hadn't married him."

"It won't help now, Lola, there is the present and the future to face."

"He told her about sending Orson out to Crockett's on the strength of the report that some strange woman was living there."

"It seemed hours and hours to Leland that Orson was gone. Or perhaps ages, for it was nearly dusk when Orson left his horse on the knoll and came down the path."

"He was alone. Leland felt at once that Orson had failed. But as he ran out to greet Orson he called, 'Is she coming back?'"

"Forbes. When I got to Baumgartner's place she had paid up and driven away in her car."

"Leland shook his head dolefully. 'Hit weren't no use of me a followin' of her, Mister Forbes, with my old horse and her in a car. She driv down toward Wytheville. We'd a followed.'"

"No, you couldn't do more, Orson. I'm grateful."

"Orson could see that Forbes was bitterly disappointed. He said, briefly, that he hated to see him 'give,' and went back to his horse."

"Lola stood in the doorway. She knew, then, how disappointed her brother must be."

"You must write to her and explain everything, Leland," she said.

"He shook his head."

"Not yet. The first thing for you to do is to get away from here. I am going to get you down to New Orleans and send you to the Argentine."

"No, no, Leland—you love her, you must go to her. I have cost

HITLER HINTS BUILDING OF LARGER GERMAN BATTLESHIPS

Berlin (UP)—Adolf Hitler ordered the name of the German pocket battleship Deutschland changed to Lutzow today, planning to give the name Deutschland to a "larger ship."

It will be necessary also to change the name of the new 10,000 ton cruiser Luetzow, whose name the Deutschland takes. What name the cruiser will be given was not announced.

The assumption was that Germany might give the name Deutschland to a 35,000 ton battleship. Germany's full naval program is not known. But she has launched in the killing of Harlow, he would have to face the music, but anything would be better than letting matters go on.

Leland spoke rapidly. He was all energy. As soon as he could see his sister safely aboard the steamer he would go north. If the authorities went after him he could say he had been searching the world over for his sister. If they wanted to hold him as an accessory in the killing of Harlow, he would have to face the music, but anything would be better than letting matters go on.

"And Jeanette, unintentionally, is likely to tell of seeing me. It is evident, Lola, that she has placed no connection between the what happened—and myself. She might not have even read about it," Leland said.

Lola agreed. It was the best thing to be done. She had already caused enough misery. She understood now why Leland had been so sad all through this, a sadness he had been unable to disguise. It startled her to think what a sacrifice he had made. She clung to him and wept again, told him no woman ever had such a brother and disputed him when he said that this was more than love.

"Nothing can be more than love, Leland—real love. I know because I never had real love."

There wasn't much to pack. Harvey Orson came over and took order. He drove away and brought a man with a car, a man ly, did not ask him in and to his questions about Jeanette, she repeated:

"I don't know where she is."

There was no use trying to explain to this woman. He left, greatly discouraged, although he believed that Mrs. Kellogg did know where Jeanette was.

If he could locate Jeanette he would explain now. He would wind up his affairs and take her away, to Europe, down to see Lola, anywhere, everywhere, except back home again.

Mr. Maxin tried not to show surprise when Leland walked into his office.

"We failed to locate you or Paul just out in Orizon and gave it up," he said.

"It was unfortunate, but necessary," was the only comment Leland made. He talked business with Maxin for a half hour and then said, casually, "Where is Miss Morse these days?"

"In town—she was in here yesterday. She is doing illustrations for some of our juvenile books."

"I'll probably see her—living with her married sister I suppose?"

"I suppose so."

Maxin seemed surprised but made no comment on this.

Leland still dreaded what might follow. He still feared that some of the Connecticut authorities would learn of his presence in the city and make trouble for him.

He felt half ashamed, but he began wearing heavy tortoise shell glasses. They go far in disguising one.

For three days he telephoned to the Kellogg apartment and on each occasion he was told that Miss

Morse was out, that the speaker did not know when she would be back, that the speaker could take no message.

Leland realized this.

He was determined to find her. He thought of writing but he couldn't put into writing things necessary in an explanation for it wouldn't be fair to his sister and Leland never forgot that his sister was still in danger if she were ever found.

Every day he dropped in at his publisher's office on one pretext or another, hoping to find Jeanette.

After nearly a week had passed he met Jeanette just outside of the Maxin office.

She started to walk past him. "Jeanette!" he cried, barring her way.

"Please—I must go," she said. "You must listen to me, Jeanette. I want—"

"Leland Forbes—I despise you! How dare you speak to me?" Jeanette cried with a flash of anger that startled him.

LEGION AUXILIARY HAS POST SERVICE AIDE AS SPEAKER

George E. Faugsted, service officer for El Dorado Post, No. 119, American Legion, addressed the American Legion Tuesday night, explaining veteran's legislation and government life insurance policies.

Among some of the features stressed were the need for beneficiaries and the insured to work out a well-understood program, to eliminate misunderstanding and losses when the time comes for settling up estates of deceased veterans.

"Wives and mothers should have a thorough knowledge of their rights as beneficiaries, named in veterans' insurance policies," Faugsted told the Auxiliary members.

"Veterans should make it a point to thoroughly understand all the clauses of their policies, to go over them frequently and be sure that they are kept up-to-date."

Faugsted pointed out some of the disheartening circumstances which have occurred during his twelve years as service officer for the local Post, due to the fact that ample precautions were not taken before it was too late.

El Dorado County was represented Sunday at a meeting of the directors of the Young Republicans of California, at Fresno, at which it was voted to hold the state convention in Los Angeles, and to invite the national convention to California. The meeting adjourned in memory of Frank C. Jordan, late Secretary of State.

PENSIONERS OF STATE MAY SELL THEIR PROPERTY

California's old age pensioners may sell or transfer their real property without reimbursing the state for security benefits under a ruling delivered to District Attorney Lowell L. Sparks of Placer County by Attorney General Earl Warren.

The state welfare and institutions code permits the counties to require an agreement from old age security recipients that the latter will not transfer or encumber their real property without the consent of the county supervisors. Pensioners are permitted to own a maximum of $3,000 in such property.

Warren said the pensioners may dispose of their property, however, with the consent of the state social welfare department and the supervisors.

The attorney general also ruled counties may force sales of property disposed of by pensioners without the consent of the supervisors and declared such disposition "for an inadequate consideration might well be considered a fraud on the county and state."

In such cases, he said, the pension benefits could be curtailed or denied entirely.

ANNIVERSARY OF MARSHALL'S discovery of gold at Coloma is also Mrs. Charles W. Ball's birthday anniversary and so, when she entertained members of the Happy Go Lucky Club and a group of other friends at her home on Tuesday of this week, the doings were in the pioneer theme. Most of those present were in costume and the picture shows Marshall; Mrs. Grace Lewis as an Indian; Mrs. Walter Clifton as a miner; and Mrs. Frank Lamm as a nurse. Mrs. Jack Palmer, another miner, thinks she might have "a color" in the gold pan which the picture doesn't show. A Democrat Photo.

According to officers of the club, there has been some agitation for a club sponsored frolic in the snow area at the earliest date practical and it is expected this will be one of the subjects discussed at the meeting tonight.

said that interference—if any—with Japanese trade would not only boost Chinese morale in the war against Japan but might hinder the Japanese efforts to set up a new Chinese regime under Wang Ching Wei.

An indication of the attitude of the Japanese military was given by Gen. Masaharu Homma, commander in chief of the north China armies, who hinted in an interview at Tientsin at retaliation against Americans in China.

The British were believed to be trying to avoid antagonizing the U. S. by not taking advantage of the situation to increase British trade with Japan.

The Japanese were showing more open anger against British seizure of 21 Germans on the Japanese liner Asama than they were against the long anticipated expiration of the treaty with America. Japanese naval leaders were reported to be studying methods of preventing future seizures and members of parliament talked of convening the diet ahead of schedule to take up the case of the Asama seizure.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY GRATEFUL FOR HELP IN SEAL SOCIETY

In a statement during the week, Dr. A. A. McKinnon, president of the El Dorado County Tuberculosis Association, expressed the association's gratitude and appreciation for assistance given in the recent Christmas Seal Sale.

The statement mentioned particularly the local press, the various individuals throughout the county who helped revise the mailing list, the Girl Scouts of Placerville and Camino, the Boy Scouts of Camino, the Commercial Department of the High School for typing the envelopes, the Empire Theatre for running the Christmas Seal trailer, Murray's and the Placerville News Company for selling extra Seals.

"Our objective during the campaign was to direct public attention to the ever-present problem of tuberculosis, the nature of the disease and the vital necessity of local as well as state and nation-wide programs for its prevention, control and treatment. Without the most helpful assistance of all who took part, we feel our objective could not have been so successfully attained," Dr. McKinnon said.

"The whole hearted response of the community to the Seal Sale has been most gratifying, and we hope to make marked strides ahead in our constant fight against the spread of tuberculosis during the coming year."

Today's Fashion

Smart bolero dress.

By VERA WINSTON
LITTLE BOLERO dresses, to be worn under fur coats now and to blossom out with furs later, are now being featured by many shops. Here is a smart model of this type. It is of brown sheer woolen combined with gold-colored satin. The top of the dress is of satin, joined above the waist with a scalloped line. It has a high, round band neck and tiny self-buttons on the bodice. Skirt is gored into fullness. Bolero has long, tight sleeves, and a scalloped border and lining of the satin. It's charming, too, without the bolero.

"MARCH OF DIMES" OF THEATER PATRONS RAISES $119

Co-operating in the current "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign, the Empire Theatre during the first four days of the present week conducted a "March of Dimes" which resulted in raising $119 to assist in the fight on infantile paralysis.

This is according to Otto Schmit, manager of the theater, who reports that the total is substantially in excess of the amount raised in a similar activity during the campaign a year ago.

PAT'S BEAUTY STUDIO TO OPEN OVER POSTOFFICE

According to Patricia Croeland, the suite of rooms in the Summer building upstairs over the Placerville post office has been rented and is being refurnished to accommodate her beauty salon business, which will be moved to the new location February 1st.

Mrs. Croeland came here from San Francisco about two years ago and opened the Ivy Beauty Salon in the Ivy Hotel building, which she has operated since that time.

In making the change of location, the owner states that the name of the business will be changed from Ivy Beauty Salon to Pat's Beauty Studio.

LARRY KELLY

The Lions growled and the birds flew out the window last Sunday except for Mike Kelly and Perry Tracy, who leveled off on a couple. Perry bagged one on number 7 for a deuce and Mike "snuck" up on one with a four on number 7. Even with "Mike's" fine bird on number 8 it wouldn't stop Ken McCoy so "Mike" had to say enough by one up on the 18th hole.

Leo Burger wouldn't be talked out of his chance for the trophy so he shook hands with Perry on the 18th one up. He now takes on the president of the club, also the club champion, Bob Roberts, who took Joe Hearn by one hole on the 19th. Grit and determination slipped along with one left foot about the 18th.

"Iron sides" Don Goodrich quieted the big guns of Louis Armes by one well placed shot, and now takes on Ken McCoy. This should be a battle.

Ben Larson came off a sick bed to give Jumbo McMurray a real cat and dog fight with the dog cooling off a bit on the 20th. So Ben will probably take on Roy Strum on the next step to the top. Roy still has four holes to play with Doc Hensley, but has a lead of three holes with four to play.

John Palmer will square off with Jay Fox this week along with Loren Atwood and Bert Pierroz who still have their match to play, probably Thursday afternoon.

GRANGE NOTES

Hangtown Grange

Hangtown Grange met Friday night, January 19, at Fossati's hall with Master Wm. Buchanan in the chair. Jennette Redelfs was initiated into the first and second degrees of our order. Master Buchanan appointed several committees namely: legislative committee, Carl Visman, chairman, Chet Carver, A. W. Blair; card party, Jessie Visman, chairman, Marion Carpenter, Ethel Carver; sick committee, Wanda Jacquier, Agnes Blair, Thelma Redelfs. Carl Visman spoke briefly on the question of Finnish relief and stated he had been appointed in charge of this district. Chas. Jacquier brought up the question of the Grange building their own hall and after some discussion a committee composed of Carl Visman, O. W. Blair and Chester Carver was named to check the feasibility of the plan. The password for the coming year was given the members by Master Buchanan.

It was announced that the Hangtown Grange card party would be held Thursday night, January 25. Grange closed followed by the lecturer's program and refreshments.—Elmer Porini, secretary.

Three Forks

We have our new roof finished and oiled now and are off to a good start in the New Year, toward a bigger and better Grange and more fun for all. It has been decided to postpone the dance advertised for January 27th in favor of a really big dance February 24th.

Gold Trail

The first meeting of the Gold Trail Grange was held on January 10th, under a new and very capable master, Robert Johnson.

The Grange card party was postponed as the annual '49 dance fell on our regular date. At our next card party on February 17th, we will award the beautiful crocheted bedspread, made by the ladies of Woodbridge Grange and won by Gold Trail.

The ladies of the Home Economic Club are practicing for a play, name and date will be given later.

—Minnie Marchini, lecturer.

Local Business Woman to Write Column for this Paper Each Week

Beginning next week, Mrs. June Chemnitz, local business and clubwoman will begin a series of specially written articles to appear each week in this newspaper. The title of the column is to be "Tested Recipes and Household Hints" and will deal with those subjects, which are vital and interesting to all homemakers.

Mrs. Chemnitz, who is associated with her husband, Eric F. Chemnitz in the operation of the Pioneer Grocery of this city and also President of the Placerville Soroptimist Club, is well qualified to prepare these interesting articles. Prior to her coming to this county less than a year ago, she had had wide experiences in home economics, domestic science and cooking school work, having been assistant to Mary Dowd Reardon, well-known home economist of the East Bay Region for four years. During this time Mrs. Chemnitz wrote and prepared most of the continuity for a two Radio programs, which were conducted by Mrs. Reardon each day, as well as assisting in the practical operation of the cooking school studio.

From 1930 to 1932, Mrs. Chemnitz was a resident buyer for one of the large women's wearing apparel stores of Berkeley and prior to that held the position of resident buyer for Associated Merchandising Corp., and John Wanamaker's Store in New York City.

We invite you to look for her interesting articles each week and to tell your friends about it, that they may participate in the helpful suggestions which will follow.

The Cougars play Jackson for the second time Friday night, and, since they triumphed over the boys in green before, they show promise of stretching their string of victories to four apiece over Mother Lode League competition. Come on out and see the fun.

Income Tax, Maybe

It has long been known that Science Teacher Dodds has a long and complicated system of grading, but no one ever accused him of working it out with any aid except his own mathematical genius. Yet he was caught in his room the other morning with a grade book in one hand, an adding machine in his lap, and a ribbon well over a yard and a half long hanging out of the machine! Proving, no doubt, that anything can happen in a science lab.

Freshies win

The final standings in the Christmas Festival contest have been published, and to our amazement, the freshmen came out ahead! Then followed the juniors, seniors, and lastly, the lowly sophs. The percentages of food brought in for the candy sale were quite low, but even at that a goodly sum was added to the social service fund, to aid that committee in carrying out its good work.

Assembly Program

At their last meeting, the student body was entertained by Dick Roberts, who played three selections, "Dark Eyes," "Balalaika," and "Indian Love Call," on the piano. These were liked so well that he was obliged to play an encore, and if they had had their way, the student body would have sat and listened to him all afternoon.

A lecture on modern science was given by Professor Stringfield—a bona fide prof. at U. S. C. for one the "doubting Thomases" on our faculty looked him up in the book—
